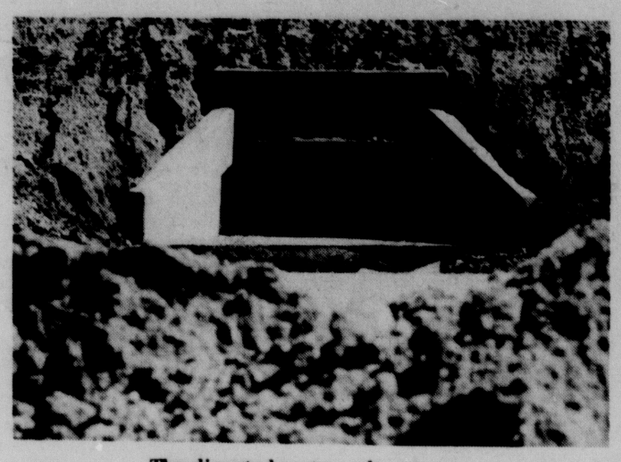
Lair says he may resort to courts to force action

Hunsley developer, highway department clash over culvert water



The disputed water culvert.

Hunsley Hills Developer A. W. Lair said Friday, after a Thursday confrontation with a Texas Ranger and Texas Highway Department officials, he may "have to go to district court" to try to stop the department from dumping mud and water into his rolling development and into an apartment house.

Local Highway Department Engineer Donald Day says the problem is one state policy forbids him to solve.

Lair claims the problem is a direct result of highway department improvements and the department should be responsible for the solution.

Both Lair and Day agree on the basic problem: water crosses under U. S. 60 just east of its intersection with the VFW Road by way of an underground culvert. The culvert empties onto the north access road and water so emptied roars down into Hunsley Hills and into the Canyon Creek Apartments.

"The Highway Department has taken all the water from the south side of the Hereford Highway (U. S. 60) under that culvert there and they're dropping it on a concrete slab on the north side and letting it go," Lair said. "It's going across country and taking mud and sand with it and into Canyon Creek Apartments."

Lair said he's talked for several weeks with highway department officials in Canyon and at the district office in Amarillo.

"I've begged and pleaded to get the Highway Department to carry that water west about 150 feet and down a dedicated street to eliminate the problem and they say it's not their problem," he contends.

On Thursday, Lair began trying to solve the problem on his own when he sent trucks and road grader to the north side of the access road and began piling large mounds of dirt parallel the access road to block the water which might emit from the culvert and divert the water to the west. With the road grader, he began dredging on state right-of-way a canal to the west to take the water down yet-to-be constructed Mulberry Lane in Hunsley Hills.

His action was halted later that day when Day showed up with a Texas Ranger to stop him.

"I was floored," said Lair.

"He's threatened to impound water on a public road," Day said Friday. "He did not have the authority to be on public right-of-way to do anything. He was and I stopped him."

While Lair did stop dredging the small canal to carry the water to the west, he is still piling dirt on his property near the culvert to keep the water from entering Hunsley Hills for a downward plunge into the Canyon Creek Apartments.

While Lair complains that the highway department should be responsible for redirecting the water from the culvert onto the dedicated road, Day contends the highway department has no such responsibility because Lair has altered a natural waterway route by development.

"That culvert was there before Canyon Creek or A. W. Lair had any property there," he said. "That's one of the inherent problems he inherited."

Day said the highway department believes that because the culvert has been there for years and water has been flowing from the culvert into Hunsley Hills, the water way so created has become a natural waterway and it is against highway department policy to alter a natural waterway course.

He said Lair has actually made the problem worse by trying to develop the area through which the water once flowed freely.

"What he's been wanting us to do is take responsibility for water that goes across the highway onto his land," he said. "In each case, he elected to revert the water to a place other than the natural course."

Day said highway department engineers try to take water across a highway in such manner that the water will be deposited in a natural waterway.

"These were natural waterways and the previous owner was perfectly in agreement for these to be where they are," Day said. "We can't take it on ourselves to improve somebody else's property. This is a state-wide policy."

Two-inch rain falls; winds hit property

The lightning, wind and thunderstorms which demolished a hangar at Canyon Airport at dawn Thursday and tumped over a mobile home west of the city carried more good into the county than evil.

Two separate storms early Thursday may have dumped over the hangar and the mobile home, but they also dumped as much as 2½ inches of rain on portions of a ready-to-mature wheat crop here.

A mushy hail fell with the rain before dawn Thursday, but no major damage was reported in any area of the county.

County Agent John Brazzil said one farm northeast of Canyon near Washington Street reported receiving 2.20 inches of rain from the storm cells which passed from southwest to northeast accompanied by strong winds and brilliant lightning displays.

Areas south of Canyon reported amounts between 1¼ and 2 inches from the storms. Areas east of the city reported similar amounts ranging to as much as 2 inches.

Canyon officially received .97 inches of rain from the storms.

Brazzil said only one portion of the county was slighted by the clouds. He said the area just northwest of Canyon reported only .25 to .30 inches of rain.

"For some areas, this was the best rain of the year," Brazzil said.

While the rains are expected to give a final good watering before the county's wheat acreage matures, Brazzil said the moisture should be adequate for planting of summer crops, such as grain sorghum.

Brazzil has predicted this year's wheat crop will have above average yields on a record number of planted acres.

The rains are also expected to benefit pasture and rangelands which were beginning to suffer from less than average amounts of rainfall.

While the rains benefited area farmers and their wheat, the accompanying strong winds destroyed the 14 x 80 foot mobile home owned by Curtis Garrett about five miles west of Canyon and just southwest of the Canyon Airport.

Garrett was not home about 6:30 a.m. Thursday when the winds upended the mobile home while his wife and six children slept.

Garrett reported the mobile home was not tied down but had been set on blocks.

A neighbor, A. B. Gray, told The News he heard a roar as the rain fell and jumped from bed to take a look outside his home.

"I looked every place but out this way," he said motioning toward the overturned mobile home. "It was raining so bad I couldn't see."

Some time later, he said, he looked out his east windows and noticed the mobile home overturned.

Garrett's wife and children were taken to Palo Duro Hospital where one son was treated. All were released after a short period of time.

Garrett's late model car was crushed by the weight of the mobile home, which landed atop the vehicle.

About the same time early Thursday, winds blew apart a long airplane hangar just south of the runway at the Canyon Airport.

Eight cars and two airplanes were damaged when the winds lifted the roof and back wall of the hangar from the ground and deposited them about 100 feet to the north. The force of the winds pulled from the ground heavy concrete feet used to anchor the hangar in place.

One plane and several cars damaged by the winds are owned by Canyon businessman Bill Counseller.

Walter Crosley, who lives with his wife and family about 100 yards to the east of the airport hangar in small 19 x 48 foot travel trailers, told The News he heard no sound and felt no particularly strong wind about the time the hangar must have

Storm shelter aid available in city

Local weather-worriers who want to head for shelter when spring storms approach but have no place to go in their own homes or neighborhoods can find limited protection in Canyon.

Sheriff Cliff Longest said his office has been deluged with phone calls from Canyon residents who, fearing tornadoes, are searching for a secure underground shelter for themselves and their families.

He said there is a limited amount of space in the basement of the north courthouse wing in downtown Canyon for shelter for local residents.

In fact, apparently many local residents are already aware of the basement area in the courthouse.

"We have people flooding in here when it gets nasty out," Longest said.

Another shelter area is provided at the Canyon High School campus, according to Supt. Jerry Jacobs.

Jacobs said the boiler room and basement area adjacent the boiler room off the cafeteria portion of the high school building are available and open to the public in case of tornado weather.

He said it may be possible that in the future, after work is completed on the newly-acquired school administration building (formerly Neblett Hospital), the public can use the basement facilities under that structure for storm shelter.

City Manager Glen Metcalf reports that the city does not have any storm shelter facility for local residents. Nor is such a facility planned for the new city hall complex which is under construction

Women's chamber seeking opinions on public facilities

The women's division of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce wants to know what you think about your city.

Likes, dislikes and specific problem areas will be asked of local citizens through a questionnaire included in today's The Sunday News.

The "Community Attitude Survey" is a project of the women's division, which hopes to learn what citizens think of the town and what specific problem areas are, according to Mrs. Evelyn Trice.

Sample questions from the questionnaire:

*Is there anything you particularly like about the Canyon community?

*Is there anything you particularly dislike about the Canyon Community?

*What are the three most important things which need to be done to make this a better community?

A large part of the survey asks respondents to check their feelings about various city, county and public services offered — everything from water pressure to street maintenance and medical and dental services.

Recreation facilities are also addressed in the survey and respondents are asked to give their opinions of the facilities for teenagers, children, senior citizens, and of restaurant, library, shopping facilities. Opinions on local schools are also sought.

Mrs. Trice said the survey is part of an effort by the women's division to know what the needs and wants of the local citizens are so they can work more toward meeting those needs.

The women are seeking responses from at least 1000 persons, Mrs. Trice said, and copies of the survey will be available at the chamber of commerce office, the West Texas State Bank, the First National Bank, Pioneer Natural Gas Co. and Southwestern Public Service Co.

The surveys should be returned to the chamber office, Box 8, Canyon, or to any of those locations where the surveys are available.

A two-week deadline has been placed on the return of the surveys.

Mrs. Trice said the idea for the community survey came from the Nocona Chamber of Commerce, which recently ran a similar questionnaire.

Statistics from the surveys returned will be compiled, she said, and problem areas will be noted with idea in mind that agencies or businesses involved might receive copies of the survey material relating to their areas.

On discrimination charges

TCLU, feds to aid Mrs. Strain

Mrs. Marguerite Strain, a 30-year city employee who has complained the city's retirement system discriminates against women, learned last week both the U.S. Department of Justice and the Texas Civil Liberties Union are interested in helping her fight the system.

Two letters arrived the same day last week — one from the TCLU and one from the Justice Department — notifying Mrs. Strain of most recent action on a complaint she filed two years ago with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission against the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

Mrs. Strain, who turned 65 last fall and who was rehired for another year by city commissioners Monday night, said a letter from the TCLU executive director in Austin indicates that organization has changed its stand on her complaint. According to the letter, she said, the TCLU has offered to provide an attorney to represent her should she decide to sue the TMRS for what she believes is blatant discrimination in allocating retirement funds.

The TCLU executive director notified Mrs. Strain that his organization will bear all costs related to the litigation should the Department of Justice decide not to file suit on her behalf.

A letter from the Justice Department indicates Mrs. Strain's complaint is still considered an active case and that department officials are now investigating the TMRS and her charges of discrimination.

Three years ago, Mrs. Strain told The News she felt the municipal retirement system, which operates under state law, discriminates against women because of its actuary tables used for figuring retirement payments.

According to TMRS literature, women must work five years longer than men of the same age and work experience to draw retirement benefits equal to those of the men.

If, for example, Mrs. Strain had retired when she turned 65, she would have drawn an amount equivalent to the amount a man would draw at age 60. She would, according to the tables, have to work until age 70 to draw benefits equal to a man at age 65.

TMRS officials have said repeatedly they will not change their system unless mandated to do so by the courts.

Originally, the TCLU told Mrs. Strain they would file an amicus curae brief in court should she decide to sue the TMRS. However, they would not at that time last fall commit themselves to full support of her complaint.

Initially, too, there had been no indication from the Department of Justice that it would be interested in pursuing her complaint through the courts.

Conferees get WTSU money bill

A House-Senate conference committee was expected to begin work this week end on a two-year state appropriations bill which could allocate more than $20 million to West Texas State University over the next two years.

The bill went to conference committee late last week after passage by the House.

Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, WTSU president, said the appropriation designated for the university in both Senate and House versions corresponds with the recommendations of the Legislative Budget Board.

But, he said, the Senate version of the bill also included money amounts for extra book purchases for the university library, for additional research, and for inflation-riddled utility bills.

He said he anticipates that the conference committee will concentrate in considering WTSU's appropriation for the biennium on those items which are not included in the House version of the bill.

Senators included in their appropriation proposal $200,000 per year for extra books for the university library. That amount, Dr. Watkins said, would be above the usual allocation for library book purchases.

The Senate version also includes a $100,000 annual allocation for research funds above and beyond the funding allocated for operation of the Killgore Research Center and for organized research grants.

Other than those differences, he said, the two bills are alike and both bills are embodiments of the proposed allocation schedule outlined by the Legislative Budget Board early in this year's session.

Watkins indicated he is pleased with the allocations in both bills, but hopes the addi-

Sherrod says county can control development road building

Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod is expected to tell county commissioners they have two alternatives in the law for dealing with rural subdivision developers in the construction and maintenance of roads and streets.

Sherrod researched Texas law last week and believes the county can require subdivision developers to post a substantial bond guaranteeing roads and streets in their subdivisions will be constructed to county standards.

He also believes commissioners can require that each subdivision for which a plat is presented for approval listed as a county road district, with the financial burden for future road construction and maintenance placed on the development-district residents.

Sherrod's research was spurred by commissioners recently. During a commission meeting two weeks ago Commissioner John Fulgenzi called for a renewed effort on the part of commissioners to deal with what he believes to be a major problem facing the county.

"This road thing is gonna get worse before it gets better," Fulgenzi said. He suggested commissioners place on each subdivision plat presented for approval a caveat stating that the county will accept road maintenance on the subdivision streets only on a dirt-road basis. He also suggested that before any improvements could be made on the streets or roads, the subdivision should be required to become an organized road district under the law.

While some doubt was expressed at that meeting that such requirements could be placed on developers and development-dwellers, Sherrod's research indicates both possibilities are, at least, legal.

And, he has learned, it would also be possible for commissioners to require developers to post a money bond to guarantee that their roads meet county specifications.

Article 6626xa, Vernon's Annotated Civil Statutes, provides not only that commissioners may write specifications for the construction of roads in subdivisions, but also allows commissioners to require the posting of the bond.

The bond will require that "the owner or owners of any such tract of land to be subdivided will construct any roads or streets within such subdivision in accordance with the specifications promulgated by the Commissioners Court of such county." It also says that the bond amount may be determined by commissioners "but shall not exceed a sum equal to Three Dollars for each lineal foot of road or street within such subdivision."

Randall County commissioners two years ago contracted with Amarillo Engineer Bill McMorries to draw up specifications for rural road construction. The road construction policy has been in effect for more than a year and requires curb and gutter construction in some subdivisions.

Sherrod's research also indicates the commissioners may, as Fulgenzi suggested, establish rural road paving districts in the county, and apparently can make those road district boundaries contiguous with the boundaries of a subdivision for which a plat is sought.

Road districts, according to Articles 752c and 6790, can be established either by the commissioners court or by the landowners themselves.

Article 752c allows the commissioners to establish one or more road districts by simply entering an order on the court minutes.

Article 6790 allows the voters in a designated road district to petition for an election to be called for the purpose of passing a tax levy within the district to pay for road maintenance and construction. Another law allows the voters to petition for an election for issuance of bonds.

Article 6790 also allows residents of a particular area to petition to have their area designated a special road dis-

Our World

We Can All Change

By Ann Brown

There is a current philosophy that has been popular for a long time: "We are what we are, and there's nothing we can do about it."

The proponents of that fatalistic theory are responsible for our modern policy of being soft on criminals, especially parents who abuse their children: "The poor things just can't help themselves."

The fatalists quote sources all the way from Peanuts to Shakespeare and the Bible to substantiate their philosophy.

However, if Peanuts subscribed to hopeless fatalism, would he have Lucy conducting counseling sessions and Charlie Brown paying his nickels for her advice?

And Shakespeare did indeed create the most realistic and diverse characters in all literature. But whether it was an evil Iago or a gentle Juliet, there's no question that Shakespeare was always on the side of the angels.

The central theme of the Bible is Jesus saves. Does that sound hopeless?

If man were powerless to improve his lot, society would have no place for missionaries, teachers, psychologists, or psychiatrists.

Hope runs like a golden thread through the works of all the great poets: Tennyson, Browning, Coleridge, Longfellow — even Walt Whitman.

Coleridge was praised for being an individualist, and condemned for being a nonconformist. It's a bit difficult to understand how a man could be one without being the other.

However, nonconformity is usually considered an asset or a defect according to the areas in which one fails to conform. There are certain rules of morals, good taste, and civil law that all men are expected to obey. In those areas, the immortal poet was above criticism.

In Coleridge's masterpiece, "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," the story begins with a vivid word picture of a bright and happy journey. It continues with the helpless lost soul caught in the clutches of sin, and works through to his salvation.

Hopeless?

Browning may have sounded fatalistic in some of his works, but his philosophy is probably best illustrated in the lines of "Rabbi Ben Ezra:"

Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made.
Our times are in his hand
Who saith, "A whole I planned;
Youth shows but half. Trust God; see all, nor be afraid!"

Tennyson said, "I am a part of all that I have met," which was his way of saying man is changed by his associations. And he said, "Old age hath yet his honor and his toil," which offers hope even to the aged and infirm.

But Tennyson's philosophy is perhaps best expressed through old King Ulysses' final words:

Though much is taken, much abides; and though
We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are—
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

Fatalistic?

Anyone who does not like what he is can change — if he wants to "strive, to seek. . .and not to yield."

But the "one soldier in step" who wants what he wants when he wants it is not likely to improve even under the best psychiatric help available.

There are limits, however, to society's tolerance of persons who demand their own way regardless of the cost to others.

Cambodian communists found that out.

This Memorial Day

By CARROLL WILSON

A friend who's hearing is rapidly fading tells me he finds himself smiling more the less he hears and understands of what others say. He simply assumes what they're saying merits a smile rather than a grimmace.

Such, too, was the way of Capt. Thuy. He smiled incessantly.

A wrinkled, olive-drab uniform under a dark head with smiling eyes and matching grin, that was Capt. Thuy. A veteran of a decade of fighting in the Army of the Republic of Vietnam, he looked not more than 17.

His understanding of the American world was a babe's. The language for him must have been a great mystery.

The U. S. government cooperating with his government dumped Capt. Thuy in the fourth seat from the blackboard, third row from the back in a classroom in the large Army and Defense Department building at Fort Harrison in the winter of 1971.

Arrayed before him, as he sat smiling, were the manifestations of a culture which could not shock him. Without understanding or comprehension, he would be only confused.

The books, I'm convinced, told Capt. Thuy nothing, just as the instruction told him nothing. From the war-ravaged hills of Vietnam to the fourth seat from the blackboard, third row from the back is a leap which can be made in relative ease only if what one leaves and what one arrives in are parallel.

It wasn't just the language, you see, it was the whole thing. While Capt. Thuy had the English facility of an American two-year-old, he could still make himself understood.

But, Capt. Thuy was there in his classroom seat to learn the American art of public relations, military-style public relations. Does a starving man need instruction in what foods to avoid to prevent tooth decay?

What Capt. Thuy needed to learn was propaganda and its techniques. To my dismay, and to the dismay of the authors of CBS's "Selling of the Pentagon," we didn't learn it.

Capt. Thuy told us one day as he smoked a cigarette just outside our classroom his job in his Vietnam Army unit was to be more a unit propagandist than a unit publicist.

He told us his wife had been killed in Hue by the Viet Cong, that his children remained in that city with his mother while he spent eight weeks in America.

He flashed Polaroid shots of the kids, the girl with two front teeth missing, the boy with a cereal-bowl haircut. After 10 years of vicarious living-room intrusion into the lives of Vietnamese, it was good to know somewhere in that country children could smile.

The 75 others of us, Army, Air Force and Navy officers, overjoyed at the prospect of gaining a non-combat MOS, were mildly curious of Capt. Thuy.

"Must have some connections," muttered a Marine lieutenant, the only one of us to see ground combat duty in Capt. Thuy's country.

We agreed Capt. Thuy must have been President Thieu's nephew to be able to garner an eight-week paid vacation in the United States.

We clucked our teeth at the fact the Army — both his and ours — had been so short-sighted as to send Capt. Thuy to study in America without having taught him any English.

We left Capt. Thuy alone. He smiled a lot, we didn't. He was pleasantly oblivious to his studies, we could not be. He was bored, as were we, but our boredom was from typical American nonchalance, his from incomprehension.

Capt. Thuy is only a dent in my memory, a blade of grass on a 28-year panoramic landscape.

I weep for Capt. Thuy, his dead wife, his dark-haired son, his smiling daughter.

It was we, Capt. Thuy, who did not understand.

Reader Blasts Publisher Comments On Post Office

To the Editor,

I have just been given a copy of your editorial of May 1, 1975, Poastmaster, Morelands reply, and your follow up editorial.

Your editorial was colorful but misleading, slanted, insinuating, and in some areas quite vindictive. I for one would like to know where you acquired your information, as there is surely few facts present.

If you will allow, I will try to enlighten you on a few of your errors.

1. The $1300 cost of living allowance has been received over a period of two years consistant with consumer index increases. And yes, we do wish to have it converted to basic salary, otherwise all postal employees will in effect have a reduction in salary of $1300 or more per year, while they, the employee, is being forced and pressured to higher productivity.

2. At present there is an over-time desired list, which any employee may sign, any employee signing this list is requesting any and all overtime available and is also getting it. Any employee, can be and is required to work overtime on his/her duty assignment as needed.

3. The mail does go through "In spite of rain, sleet or snow or dark of night, the mail must go through." The decision as to whether or not any mail is left behind is purely up to management not the individual employee, as management controls both the employee and the mails.

4. Yes, we are seeking double time for overtime. At present the Postal Service is reducing the number of Postal Employees, but the mail must be worked and delivered, therefore the employees who are left must not only handle their own already assigned work, but must also absorb the work performed by the former employees.

5. At present if an employee is called in to work on his day off, the employee is guaranteed 8 hours work, and the employee is worked his full 8 hours. Regular employees are guaranteed 8 hours work per day, five (5) days per week. I nor any other person knows of any instance when an employee has been paid seven or eight hours work pay and have worked only fifteen minutes or any other ridiculous amount of time.

6. At present if an employee must work on his holiday he is paid what is called premium pay, meaning the employee came in to work on his holiday and received his holiday pay of eight hours plus straight time for the hours worked. How many persons are worked on a holiday for straight time? Therefore, we are requesting that when an employee is called in on his/her holiday, he/she be paid double time for hours worked.

7. As stated before employees who are called in on his/her off day are worked their full day as they are already guaranteed 8 hours work.

8. Yes, we are asking for better fringe benefits, but what we ask for is not out of line with the rest of federal employees.

9. Yes, we do get nine holidays per year but there are state and local employees who get more. How many holidays does the average worker get. Here you were quite vindictive.

10. It is not "juice or drugs" that is causing a deterioration in service as you so insinuated, it only shows you did not use facts nor investigate the subject before you wrote your editorial. If you had checked there are only seven (7) carriers in Canyon, Texas, and if you will check you will find the carriers carry out all of the mail sent to their cases each morning except when a manager directs the carriers to curtail (cutback—leave behind) mails. A letter Carrier cannot carry out the mail unless it is present to be carried out, yet you are blaming the carrier for executive error—the carrier has no control as to when a letter will be available for him/her to case and deliver. This is up to managements prerogative/control and transportation. You must remember carriers pick up mails and deliver mails only [when] all other operations are out of the carriers control.

11. Perhaps you can remember when the old time carrier was his/her patrons best friend and had the time and was allowed to perform all of the kind deeds you mentioned, but have you checked into the present operations of the Postal Service lately? Carriers are not allowed to deviate from their routes. Carriers are not allowed to take the time to do anything except to carry mail. Also this portion of your editorial is in conflict with the rest of your editorial. Apparently, you desire for carriers to perform their duties at the least possible cost/time yet you desire carriers to perform other duties at the cost of the tax payer for the convenience of a few.

12. Once again you have blamed the carrier for delaying the mails which is a gross injustice. Letter Carriers take pride in their work and perform to the best of their ability under existing conditions, such as; Carriers do not like walking on patrons lawns but do so because they are ordered to. Carriers would like to have time to give more personal service but their work load does not permit them to do so nor does executives of the Postal Service. Carriers do deliver mails with garbeled addresses if the mails are made available for them to do so. The carrier is not the one who sends back mails. If the carrier knows where the mails are intended too, he will deliver them. When mails are delayed in transit it is not the fault of the carrier. The Carriers are not involved in transporting mails.

13. The operations of the mails are in the hands of Postal Executives who have been hired to run it. Carriers do not run the Postal Service nor do they wish to. Postal Executives are firmly in charge of the Postal Service and its total operations. Also you are advised carriers are quite competent in their duties, and if mails are lost in the mail, the carrier would be the least possible culprit, also to the chronic trouble makers - they are most generally union stewards or other union officials who are defending the employee or standing up for their rights presently in existence.

14. It is a sad day because we call our news media the Freedom of Press, when people who write editorials against individuals, unions and others can give their personal opinion only, but they do always leave out the other side of the story. I am talking about the parts concerning the NALC union in which many very nasty insinuations were made, and the Postal Service Letter Carrier was so grossly and unjustly maligned. You applied these to everyone. We would request that with freedom of the press that both sides of the issues should be given and not just one side that has been clouded with things that people do not know what they are talking about. With freedom of press goes very much responsibility as well as power and influence. If this is not so, I do not understand its function. You have a right to your opinions and ideas, and you have the right of freedom of press which I for one, will never question, but I do question your responsibilities and fairness as is evident and well within my rights, and all other persons who read your editorials.

I write this to you as an individual and request that the Postal Service Letter Carrier receive a fair hearing from you and your paper with our side also being aired through your editorial after both sides have been investigated and knowledge gained as to the true picture which is practically never totally one sided. Thanking you in advance for reading this letter and any consideration given.

(Ed. Note: Bulk of our information for the column in question came from Bulletin No. 7, National Association of Letter Carriers AFL-CIO, dated April 16, 1975. A great deal of this bulletin was quoted direct. Possibly NALC has modified some of its demands since April 16. If so, I am not aware of it. There is no way I can fix individual blame, but I reiterate my statement based on personal experience that mail service is poor. This is not meant to be vindictive. It is a statement of fact.)

Glenda Kay Holladay Graduates In N.M.

Glenda Kay Holladay of Canyon was among the underclassmen honored during commencement exercises at St. John's College in Santa Fe, New Mexico on Sunday, May 18.

Before conferring Bachelor of Arts degrees upon twenty-three Seniors President Richard D. Weigle announced a number of scholarships, awards and prizes.

Miss Holladay was one of six juniors receiving a Bromwell Ault Memorial Scholarship. These are given in memory of longtime member of the Board of Visitors and Governors Bromwell Ault for leadership ability, potential for service to society, broad intellectual interests, and academic ability. The amount of the scholarship depends upon need though a prize of $50 accompanies each one.

"TEXAS" Cast For Tenth Season Headed By Veteran Show Folks

Ron Williams as Calvin
Pamela Hurst as Elsie

"TEXAS," a musical drama depicting the history of the Texas Panhandle, is set to open for its tenth summer season on June 18 with nightly shows through August 23, except Sunday evenings.

The show is presented under the stars at the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon and for the anniversary season the director, William A. Moore, and his co-workers have selected seven "TEXAS" veterans to create the lead roles this season.

Several of the lead characters started with the show in past seasons in minor capacities and have since studied and worked their way until they are now able to carry the responsibilities of the leading roles in the tenth season.

The office space of the Panhandle Heritage Foundation has been doubled in expectation of a record attendance at the show this season. Reservations for the 1975 season are already arriving in quantity so patrons of the theatre are urged to make reservations as soon as they know the dates they wish to see "TEXAS" this year. Tickets may be purchased by writing "TEXAS" at Box 268, Canyon Texas 79015 or with a visit to the offices at 2010 Fourth Avenue, Canyon or by telephoning 806-655-2182.

Ron Williams Plays Lead Role Of Armstrong

Ron Williams of Amarillo will play the leading role of Calvin Armstrong this year. A senior at West Texas State University, Ron has played a wide variety of parts during his college career. He received the Best Actor Award as well. In his last year at the University, Mr. Williams acted as co-director of the Christmas show, "Alice in Wonderland;" played Dr. Carrasco in "Man from la Mancha;" Uncle Chris in "I Remember Mama;" Lovberg in "Hedda Gabbler;" Ellyot in "Private Lives;" Feste in "Twelfth Night." He designed the set for "The Fourposter;" was Cast Director (president) of the honorary drama fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, and played the guitar professionally.

As an actor, Mr. Williams is particularly effective, as he changes his appearance and style so radically from one part to another that he is often not recognized.

Mr. Williams started in "Texas" as a dancer four years ago, worked to understudy both Tuck and Calvin last year, and now has the top responsibility.

In entering the professional theatre, Ron Williams is following a family tradition. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.S. Williams of 8600 South Western. Mr. Williams furnished entertainment as Master of Ceremonies and playing guitar and bass fiddle to the area. As leader of the band, The Western Cavaliers, he played at the Avalon Ballroom for 26 years. Earlier, he played with Billy Briggs, and the XIT Boys, and also with the Sons of the West, the musical group of Cal Farley's program.

It was at KGNC, however, where he probably reached the most people. He made many friends as he served as M. C. for the afternoon kid show. Wearing a long, flowing beard, he introduced many special features. One was the rating of movies from one to four himdinger.

Father and son have already added much to the pleasure of the Panhandle.

Leading Lady's Role Goes To Miss Hurst

Pamela Hurst will play the leading lady, Elsie, this tenth season of "Texas." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Hurst of Lubbock and will be a senior at West Texas State University next year majoring in speech and theatre.

During the past year she played Agnes in "The Fourposter," and received the award of Best Actress in student directed production for it. She won the award of Best Supporting Actress in a student directed production as well for her interpretation of Sister-Woman in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." Her principal responsibility this year was the ingenue lead in "I Remember Mama." She also played with distinction Viola in "Twelfth Night" and Thea in "Hedda Gabbler."

Miss Hurst is a member of Chi Omega, Buffalo Masquers, the honorary drama fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. In addition to her theatre work at West Texas State University, she has participated in the summer theatre workshop at Texas Tech University.

Miss Hurst appeared in "Texas" for the first time last summer when she filled the role of Lettie Faye Belcher, and was the understudy of Elsie.

Robin Goodhue as Kate
Jerry Williams as Tuck

Dwayne Hood Returns To Cast As Newberry

Dwayne Hood (Dave Newberry) came to the "Texas" company last year from Denver City, Texas, where he was the choral director for the Denver City High School, and the Junior High. He has performed as soloist around the West Texas area, and has been director of the Denver City Community Chorale, and with his teaching has produced and directed, "The Sound of Music," "The Music Man," "Brigadoon," and "Lil Abner."

Dwayne holds the B.M.E. degree from Texas Tech University, and membership in T.M.E.A., T.C.D.A., M.E.N.C., and T.S.T.A

Some of the productions he has appeared in include: "The Devil and Daniel Webster," "Harvey," "Androcles and the Lion," "West Side Story," "Oklahoma," "The Music Man," "Naughty Marietta," "The Curious Savage," "Brigadoon," and "The Sound of Music."

Last fall Mr. Hood joined the faculty at West Texas State University as a graduate assistant. In addition to his teaching duties, he sang the tenor role in "Don Giovanni" in the fall production at West Texas State University.

Tuck Back For Eighth Season

Jerry O. Williams, (Tucker Yelldell), returns for his eighth season in the comedy role of "Ole Tuck."

During the day, Jerry owns and manages Williams Et Cetera, a most unusual shop featuring gifts and quality antiques, including his own line of handmade "Cacharros: pottery.

Jerry is a member of the National Association of Dealers in Antiques, the Appraisers Association of America, and the National Retail Merchants Association. He holds the Certificate of Clinical Competence in Speech Pathology from the American Speech and Hearing Association. He has also served as supervisor of Speech Pathology for the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center, and an instructor in Speech Pathology at WTSU.

Jerry is on the board of Directors of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, and the Administrative Board of the First United Methodist Church in Canyon.

Mr. Williams helped with difficult make-up for "Man from la Mancha" and other Branding Iron Theatre productions and the "Texas" production.

Kate Lucas Back For Show

Robin McKenzie Goodhue, (Kate Lucas), is a most talented, sensitive actress from Canyon, Texas, and comes to the "Texas" cast for her second season, to play that many-sided character-Kate Lucas. Robin has grown up in the theatre, participating in Children's Theatre Groups, WTSU High School Workshops, and Amarillo Little Theatre productions.

She holds the B.F.A. degree from Stephens College, and appeared in numerous plays while there including: "The Children's Hour," "Juno, and the Paycock," "A Streetcar Named Desire," and "The Three Sisters." She has done many summer stock productions which included, "Charley's Aunt," "The Night of the Iguana," and "Sleeping Beauty."

When she was with the High Plains Center for the Performing Arts, she was a member of the company of "Spoon River Anthology" and starred in "Goodbye, Charlie," and "Any Wednesday" with the Diamond Horseshoe Dinner Theatre.

Robin is currently doing graduate work at West Texas State University, and has appeared in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," and as Hedda Gabler in "Hedda Gabler," for which she received a Branding Iron Award.

Mrs. Goodhue was awarded the Branding Iron for being the Best Actress in 1975, based on her portrayal of the title role in "I Remember Mama."

During the spring semester, she coached the contest play in Happy, Texas producing the "Twelve Pound Look" by James Barrie. The cast won the district competition and went to the regional meet.

Aunt Anna Role Goes To Veteran

Jane Bivins Lipscomb, (Aunt Anna), returns to the "Texas" cast for her 6th season to play the role she so skillfully creates.

As a member of two pioneer ranching families — the Bivins, and the Beverleys, she knows her role in the drama from the lives of her pioneer family of the same land, weather, and wind.

Mrs. Lipscomb received her B.A. degree from Texas Women's University and did graduate work at Columbia Teachers College, N.Y.C. While in New York, she was a member of the Daltry Opera Company, Barnes and Carruthers shows, soloist at St. Lukes Episcopal Church. She also toured with "The Debutants." She is the wife of Dr. Joe Lipscomb, of Amarillo, and they give much of their time and talents to the cultural activities in the Panhandle.

Mrs. Lipscomb appeared with Jonathan Harris in ALT's production of "The Man Who Came To Dinner," and was understudy for Ann B. Davis in "The Newlyweds" in May 1975 at the Amarillo Little Theatre.

Uncle Henry Begins Fifth Year

Harrell E. Floyd (Uncle Henry), comes to the Pioneer Amphitheatre with many credits in his fifth year with the "Texas" cast. He started with the small role of Abel Tatum and built up to the major part of Uncle Henry.

As the story unfolds and the various characters are introduced, it will be this fine WTSU alumnus — who appeared in so many interesting character roles in the Branding Iron Theatre — who will serve as the Master of Ceremonies for "Texas."

In Mr. Floyd's repertoire are "The Little Foxes," "Oklahoma," "The Rainmaker," "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," and "Edwin Booth." Shakespeare interests him particularly. He played Sir Toby in "Twelfth Night" this year, Bottom in "Midsummer Night's Dream" previously. He received the Alpha Psi Omega Award of Outstanding Achievement from the Branding Iron Theatre for his part in "Hamlet."

Mr. Harrell is a graduate of West Texas State University and is employed by the Cookbook Bread Company. He is married and has three sons.

MEMORIAL DAY

We Pay Tribute to Those Who Gave Their Lives...

Today we pause to remember... with gratitude and respect... the men throughout this nation's history who answered the call to arms and lost their own lives so that we can live in freedom and dignity. Today we count our blessings; we also consider their cost.

Nobody ever said it better than Abraham Lincoln: "... from these honored dead we take increased devotion... to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

Today let's pledge ourselves to just and lasting peace.

You are invited to attend these services Monday

Lair. . .

the VFW Road is the major concern for Lair, he also complains about another culvert just south of the development's private clubhouse and swimming pool. Water from that culvert, he said, also flows downhill and into the swimming pool or down a Hunsley Hills street, where it deposits huge quantities of mud.

Neither Lair nor Day know what the next development in the controversy will be.

"I have to assume that if we're not able to work anything out on it — and I don't know anything more to do — we'll have to have some litigation in district court about it," Lair said. "I intend to put dirt up to keep the water from running off our right-of-way and into Canyon Creek, and if they don't like that I guess they'll sue me."

County commissioners for more than a year have worried about the rapid growth and development of subdivisions in the county. (School Tax Assessor Conway Kuykendall reports more than 50 subdivisions in the county).

In May 1974, Commissioner Paul Lindsey warned the commissioners that roads constructed in rural subdivision developments could eventually cost taxpayers millions of dollars for maintenance and replacement.

Since that time, commissioners have periodically eyed subdivisions and proposed roads critically, pondering ways to withdraw the county and its financial resources from the road construction and maintenance business in subdivisions.

Two New Degree Plans In Effect At WTSU

The satisfaction of earning a college baccalaureate degree used to be hard to come by for the trained technician and the random course taker.

But already more than 20 such students have found their way into the two new degree plans, General Studies and Applied Arts and Sciences, initiated last October at West Texas State University.

"The General Studies degree plan is like a classical liberal arts degree," says College of Arts and Science Dean Ted Freidell. "It is a kind of 'non-major major' that can be whatever you want it to be."

The Applied Arts and Sciences degree plan, while having only three students enrolled in it at this time, promises to grow soon with students graduating with associate degrees in technology from such institutions as Amarillo College. Amarillo College students with degrees in mid-management and medical lab technology seemed especially interested when talking with WT counselors on their campus recently.

At present, 20 students are enrolled in the General Studies curricula, whose only requirements are completion of the 35-37 semester hour University-wide general education core mandated by the Legislature and of the 87-89 elective hours, to total 124 semester hours. The new degree also reflects innovative changes in residence requirements since students do not have to complete 24 of their last 30 semester hours in residence at WTSU. While no major or minors are required, no more than 30 semester hours in any one academic discipline can be applied towards the General Studies degree.

"This degree is ideal for someone who is primarily interested in the intellectual stimulation associated with college, someone who has no clearly designed career goals or who already has a career but wants the association with a college degree," Freidell notes. "It was originally intended for older students who may have picked up a few hours here and there and want to go to school part-time."

It is feasible with the General Studies plan, Freidell points out, to obtain a degree by going to school only at night or at times which suit the individual's schedule. The difficulty rests, however, in fulfilling the general education requirements.

A non-traditional and career-oriented degree program, Applied Arts and Sciences is designed to provide professional breadth and depth as well as academic foundations for individuals with recognized competencies in an occupational specialty.

"This degree enhances a student's employability and upward mobility in his career or vocation," says Dr. Ron Huffstutler, assistant vice-president for academic affairs. "It is strictly oriented towards job success, and is 'the best of both worlds.' "

The first step in working on this WTSU degree is a visit with an advisor to determine career goals. A student's transcript and vocational expertise will be evaluated to see whether he can qualify for up to 48 hours of his professional specialization core. The student will then have "a completely individualized" degree plan worked out for him to earn the total 124 semester hours needed for graduation, including the 35-37 semester hour general education requirements, an 18-24 semester hour professional development core, 30 advanced hours and approved electives. Unlike the General Studies degree plan, a student must have 24 out of his last 30 hours in residence at WT.

Rev. Edwin T. Upton officiated at the double ring ceremony at 8 p.m. in Wesley Chapel at Lovers Lane United Methodist Church in Dallas. A candlelight arrangement of apricot carnations, orange statice and greenery centered the altar table which was flanked by white altar candles.

Mrs. Clarence Candamio, organist, played a selection of traditional music including Lohengrin's Wedding March and the soloist, Dotie Dorsey, sang Oh Promise Me and Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee.

Escorted and presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight sata peau with Chiny lace which outlined the high neckline and fitted cresent bodice. The back interest featured a large bow of sata peau and the Bishop's sleeves of peau were decorated with appliques of the Venice lace and cuffed with matching lace. The bouffant peau skirt extended into a chapel length wedding train.

Her picture hat of candlelight moline was appliqued with Venice lace medallions and featured a fingertip veil of English silk illusion banded in Venice lace.

For "something old" the bride borrowed a ring from her grandmother, Mrs. M.L. McFarland; for "something new" she had a bracelet gift of her parents; the traditional "something blue" was her wedding garter; and she carried a penny in her shoe with her birthdate which was presented to her by her grandmother, Mrs. B.E. Magness. She carried a bridal cascade of tropicana roses and baby's breath.

Debra Magness of Happy was her sister's maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Terry Townzen of Garland and Mrs. Ron Collins of Richardson, a sister-in-law of the bridegroom. As the Thursday morning storm proceeded to the northeast, winds dislodged the roof of an outbuilding (foreground) and also knocked down the wall of a house which was being demolished anyway by Bob Covington just north of the Washington Street - Palo Duro Highway intersection.

Burglars Hit Clothing Store

Under the cover of pouring rain, burglars hit a ladieswear store in Canyon early Thursday morning.

De'ons, located at 1001½ 23rd Street in Canyon, was broken into and over $8,300 in clothing and merchandise was stolen.

According to the owner, Mrs. Della Henry, clothes by the rackfull were taken along with costume jewelry, watches and rings.

The burglars rifled through filing cabinets in the back office of the store and through the store safe, which according to Mrs. Henry, is kept only as a fire precaution and not for the keeping of money. Money isn't left in the store over night the owner said.

Entrance was gained through a display window on the north side of the building. The window was broken by the burglars.

A Canyon police officer discovered the break-in at 4:30 a.m. Police have put the burglary as happening between 3:30 and 4:30 a.m.

A few hours before the burglary was discovered, residents in the area of the store reported possible prowlers. Police then began checking buildings and found the break-in.

Apparently, the burglars left immediately before police arrived on the scene because several clothes were left on the floor ready to be taken out of the building through the broken window.

According to Lt. Tom Rolen of the Canyon Police Department, descriptions of persons and an automobile that were seen in the area have been obtained.

The burglary of De'ons is the second since the store was opened in 1967. The first break-in occurred five years ago with $3,000 in merchandise taken.

blown apart.

Crosley and his family were preparing for work when they looked out a window at the mounting storm and saw the hangar standing about 6:20 a.m.

They looked out the window again about 10 minutes later, he said, and the hangar was spread over the airfield and runway.

"I didn't hear a thing," Crosley said. "It didn't even shake these two trailers at all."

"We're sure lucky," Mrs. Crosley said. "The good Lord is sure looking after us."

As the storm passed over the city to the northeast, other damage was also reported.

Bob Covington, who lives just north of the Washington Street and Palo Duro Highway intersection east of Canyon, said winds struck his area about 8:25 a.m. ripping the roof from an outbuilding and knocking down the wall of a house he was demolishing.

His wife said the winds came from the southeast, dislodging the roof of an outbuilding just to the south of the Covington place. The winds also blew down a portion of Covington's fence.

Canyon city police reported no damage from the storm's passage.

The LBB recommendation called for allocation of about $1 million during the 1975-76 school year for general administration general institutional expense and staff benefits. The allocation for those items during the second year of the biennium is $1.16 million.

Faculty salaries are allocated $4.7 million for the first year of the biennium and $5.0 million for the second. The allocation for departmental operating expenses, instructional administration and organized activities is $1.2 million for the first year and $1.3 million for the second.

Physical plant operation is allocated $1.8 million for the first year and about $2 million for the second year.

Repairs for several buildings, including renovation of the old administration building and the first leg of an underground utilities system, are allocated $920,100 for the first year of the biennium only.

Total WTSU budget for the 1975-76 year is $10.6 million and the total for the second year is $10.3 million.

downtown.

Metcalf said it is probably a better policy to urge local residents who do not have storm shelters in their own homes to talk with neighbors in an effort to locate shelter within their neighborhoods.

He pointed out that large numbers of people scurrying about the city streets during storm warnings could be a hazard in itself.

"We suggest they investigate in their own area to see if there's a place where they could be protected," he said. "Surely a neighbor wouldn't object to sharing with someone who doesn't have one."

Clarence Thompson, business manager at West Texas State University, said he is not sure whether facilities are available on the campus to local residents seeking shelter from storms. Most buildings, he said, are locked for security purposes.

Choir Holds Concert

Spring concert for Canyon Junior High School was held Thursday evening, May 22, in the school's auditorium with Doug McCause, choir director, directing the group.

The program included selections by all junior high school choirs with several numbers directed by student teacher, Mrs. Carol Sublett.

Seventh grade boys choir presented "Everything is Beautiful" accompanied by Terry Miller and "Amazing Grace" and the seventh grade girls choir performed on "Come Saturday Morning" with accompaniment by April Howard and "Cabaret."

With the roof and back wall blown more than 50 feet to the north, cars, personal items and airplanes and parts were exposed to rains early Thursday at the Canyon Airport, which has been closed for some time, after storms passed through the county. Eight cars and two planes were damaged in the early-morning storm.

Kidney Machine Funds Rising To Aid

Funds for a kidney dialysis machine to aid the Glen Williams family in a return home for the mother of the family are continuing to mount, according to a report from Carmen Hernandez of the Canyon Community Family Services Association.

The fund count to date includes about $575 with a donation of $181.73 by students at Rex Reeves Elementary School, a count of $43 taken in collection containers throughout the city last week, and pledged sums of $250 from the University Church of Christ, $50 from St. Ann's Womens Council, and $50 from Dr. J.L. Markham.

Numerous other churches have placed the fund before their congregations and it is expected that the fund will benefit soon from additional donations.

Residents may contribute toward the $2,000 fund with donations earmarked for the kidney fund at either the West Texas State Bank or First National Bank in Canyon.

The fund will help to defray the costs of a kidney dialysis machine for Mrs. Glen Williams who has been in Dallas since Easter in order to receive kidney dialysis three times a week. Her husband, who is a shop teacher at Caprock High School in Amarillo, will go to Dallas in early June in order to learn the procedures for operation of the dialysis machine in hopes that Mrs. Williams will be reunited with her family later this summer. The Williams family includes three children, Drew, Becky and Lane.

HOW'S The Electric Company DOING?

Let's ask Bert Ballengee — Reddy's financial man.

"It takes money to build for the future so that you'll have a dependable supply of electric power. We'll need $345 million over the next five years. Of this amount, we'll have to borrow $200 million. And, at today's interest rates, it's easy to see why electricity may cost more. But, it's all part of creating the good electric service you've come to expect from The Electric Company."

Employment Available For Youth

Funding will be available through the county this summer for the employment of about 30 — and possibly more — disadvantaged youngsters in Canyon.

County Judge Woody Pond said federal funds will be administered through his office to provide jobs in tax-exempt organizations for youngsters between the ages of 14 and 21 who are from low-income families.

Funds will be provided to pay a minimum of $2.10 per hour for about 320 hours of work during the summer for the youngsters.

About 30 applications for the employment program have already been filed in the judge's office and he urged other youngsters to apply before Thursday this week.

Those interested in the program should report to the second floor of the county courthouse, north annex, and talk with Mrs. Chris Thomas, secretary to the judge.

While the funds and jobs will go on a first-priority basis to youngsters from needy families, if other jobs are available another priority will be for unemployed high school graduates or college students.

Youngsters accepted for the program will work in the Canyon summer recreation program, at West Texas State University, for the City of Canyon, Randall County and other non-profit organizations in the city.

Pond said it is possible additional funds will be available later in the summer.

A special meeting for those youngsters accepted in the program will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Thursday in the county courtroom in the downtown courthouse. Pond said work assignments will be handed out at that time.

Church Sets Tune-In Week

Bible study and fellowship will highlight the FAB Tune-in Week of First Baptist Church for the youth department beginning June 2.

Plans call for a Louisiana Fellowship to be held at High Plains Baptist Encampment on Monday; a horseback riding event at Palo Duro Canyon on Tuesday; swimming in Conner Park's pool on Wednesday; a miniature golf night at Amarillo on Thursday; and all night bowling in Amarillo Friday.
